Jacksonville, FL

Sarah Dark and Bruce Andrews plant a bald cypress along the lake edge.

of our city's tree canopy.

On January 20, 2018 CH's Sarah Dark, who works remotely from northeast Florida, volunteered with non-profits Jax Digs Trees and Greenscape of Jacksonville to plant trees in Jacksonville's Hanna Park. Hanna Park is located along the Atlantic Ocean just south of the mouth of the St. John's River. The park hosts an extensive maritime tree canopy and is a sought after recreation destination for both locals and tourists. Volunteers planted 30 trees around the park's lake area which will grow up to help Jacksonville's tree canopy. A few of the species planted were Southern Magnolia, Bald Cypress, and Red Bud.
